Be Prepared! Always Good Advice

Don't most things go more smoothly when we're prepared? That sure holds true with school. So with that in mind, the Parent Training and Resource Center will be providing a 1-2 hour workshop for parents titled "Preparing For School Success" at three locations during August.

The workshop will focus on topics that include reviewing your child's IEP/504 plan and behavior interventions. You'll learn ways of keeping up with data collection and progress monitoring. You'll get ideas on working with teachers to keep communication lines open and addressing homework concerns. The workshop will help if your child is transitioning to a new school and tips will be suggested for managing morning & bedtime routines (we know that puts EVERYONE in a better mood!). So if you're asking yourself: "Is my child making progress at the expected rate?"; "Do any goals need to be changed?"; "How can this be a successful school year for the whole family?" consider attending this free workshop.

Workshops are scheduled as follows:

Saturday August 16 - 12:00-2:00

Dorchester County Library
76 Old Trolley Road
Summerville

Thursday August 21st - 6:30-8:30

Family Resource Center
1575 Savannah Hwy, Suite 6
Charleston

Friday August 22 - 12:00-2:00

Berkeley Citizens, Service Coordinator Meeting Room
1301 Old U.S. 52,
Moncks Corner

All workshops are free but registration is necessary. To register, or get directions, please call the office at 843-266-1318 or email Susan Clark at: susanclark@frcdsn.org.

When Trouble Happens at School

No one likes those calls that deliver the news that your child has been suspended from school. Or worse, a recommendation has been made for expulsion. Maybe you get numerous calls to come to the school to pick up your child for misbehavior. Maybe you've heard that children with disabilities can't be suspended or expelled from school.

Sherry Brooks

The Family Resource Center lost a friend, and, along with families throughout the lowcountry, a dedicated education advocate when Sherry passed away on Aug. 1st. After a long & successful career in the public school system, Sherry became one of our Peer Parent Mentors in 2001. Over the next nearly ten years, Sherry helped so many parents of children with disabilities as they tried to maximize their child's education. Sherry believed in the mission of the Family Resource Center and lent her wonderful support during our formative years. We miss her already.

Same Services Different Document

Your child's IEP is going to look a little different.

Beginning in August 2014, SC Enrich will be launched state-wide and replace Excent as the new IEP System for development and implementation of individualized education programs for students with disabilities. By October 2014, the transition process will be complete and all Districts will be using Enrich. This move to a new software program for IEP development is said to be an improved system to help schools better customize their learning plans and will allow educators to increase differentiated instruction for all students.

Enrich is unique because:

- Administrators can access essential data, including course rosters, assessments, grades, attendance, and discipline to determine and report district-wide achievement.
- Enrich accepts any publishers' assessments and accommodates standard state assessments. It allows for multiple assessments from various sources without mandating assessment type.
- Educators can prescribe interventions from a variety of sources and track the success of those interventions within Enrich.
- The flexible and user-friendly interface ensures that teachers at any technical skill level can enter, extract and analyze student data.
- Graphical representations of data provide vital information in an easy to analyze dashboard format.

Enrich is designed to integrate seamlessly with student information systems streamlining implementation and ongoing system management. With state, district, program, and classroom-level assessments integrated into one flexible system, Enrich provides educators with an accurate and complete picture of EVERY student's progress at their fingertips.

Districts will be providing parents with information on this new system as the October deadline nears.

See it Here First!

The Parent Training & Resource Center (PTRC) will be providing an introduction to the new Enrich document when we conduct our next two IEP Fairs.

Thurs. Sept. 11

6:00 - 7:30

Dorchester
County Library
76 Old Trolley Rd
Summerville

Wed. Sept. 17

11:30 - 1:30

FRC office
1575 Savannah
Highway,
Suite 6
Charleston

Over the summer, the Berkeley County School District has been providing training on Enrich to their special education staff. Director Kelly Wulf was kind enough to invite PTRC staff & Mentors to attend. For those who have not yet seen the new documents, those attending these IEP Fairs will receive an introduction.

Bring your questions about special education and we'll try to answer them all. If you'd like personalized help in understanding your child's services, bring along their IEP (or 504 Plan) and PTRC staff/mentors will provide individualized consultation. This workshop is free. Please call the office to register: 843-266-1318

Licensing Autism Awareness

The South Carolina Autism Society (SCAS) has announced the launch of a new SCAS "Autism Awareness" specialty license plate. The license plate fee is $30 every two years in addition to the regular motor vehicle registration fee. The plate is available to anyone & a portion of the fees collected will be used to support the mission of the SCAS. To order a plate on line, visit the SC/DMV website at <http://www.scdmvonline.com/DMVNew/PlateGallery.aspx?q=Specialty>

Walgreens' New Technology for the Visually Impaired

Do you have a child or young adult with a visual impairment, or, who is unable to read? Are you concerned that they may have difficulty learning to take their own medications? Worried about medication mix-ups, over or under dosage, or taking medications at the wrong time?

Walgreens has an answer for you. Their accessibility initiative will help people with visual impairments who have difficulty or are unable to read a standard prescription medication label. Walgreens is the first in the industry to offer a talking prescription device, called the Talking Pill Reminder, at all of its retail locations. The device attaches to prescription containers and will be provided free of charge with prescription medications dispensed to pharmacy customers who are blind or who have visual impairments. The Talking Pill Reminder can be recorded to speak the information on the customer's prescription medication label, and also has an audible alarm to remind patients when to take a medication.

The Talking Pill Reminder is available to customers of Walgreens retail pharmacies across the country and through Walgreens prescription mail service. The devices also are available in Walgreens drugstores for purchase for a retail price of $9.99.

A website for All of our Friends

We've finally launched our new & MUCH improved website!! Now visitors will find more resources, agency information, and valuable links. AND, it's fully accessible under 508 standards. We've retained resources from the old website like the "Parent's Guide to Special Education Services" (and the user's guide), our "Special Education Crash Course", the "Project REST Manual on Recommended Practice" regarding restraint & seclusion, and our "Transition Toolkit for Parents and Students". Now you can also find the South Carolina Special Education Process Guide with the Standards for Evaluation and Eligibility Determination (SEED), and the full text of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). We've provided links to our main SC government officials as well as agencies and organizations that assist individuals with disabilities and their families. We've included links to OSEP, the Office of Special Education Programs at the US Department of Education. OSEP maintains a website that is continually being updated with special education information. There is a special page, "Espanol", for Spanish speaking families. There's even a place on the home page to make a tax-deductible donation through PayPal. Click on the "Upcoming Events" on the home page to keep up with scheduled training workshops & other low-country happenings.

We are still adding content, testimonials, and pictures to personalize our website. Please consider sending us a photo or short note if you've found our services helpful. If your testimonial or picture is chosen to be added to the website, you will be asked to sign a permission form before anything submitted is shared with others. Submissions may be faxed (843-266-1941), emailed (bevmccarty@frcdsn.org) or snail mailed (FRC, 1575 Savannah Hwy, Ste 6, Charleston, SC 29407) We hope we'll hear from you!

17TH ANNUAL KIDS' DAY 2014

"Guarding, Advocating, & Protecting Adults with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities"

With grant funding from the Developmental Disabilities Council, the South Carolina Autism Society (SCAS) developed a booklet for parents of a child or young adult with all developmental disabilities. The booklet contains information regarding guardianship and conservatorship, wills, trusts and estate planning for individuals with disabilities.

This booklet is NOT a substitute for legal advice but can help provide useful information from which to develop questions and discussion topics BEFORE hiring an attorney thus saving time and money. It covers topics such as the difference between guardianship and conservatorship, power of attorney and durable power of attorney, how a trust can be used to allow your child to still be eligible for Medicaid or other benefits, and a glossary of frequently used terms and definitions.

This booklet can be downloaded for free from the SCAS website at: <http://www.scautism.org/pdf/SCAS%20Guardian%20Handbook%20Final.pdf>

The FRC has also provided a link to the booklet from our website: <http://frcdsn.org/resources/>

If you don't have access to the internet, you may call the SCAS (800-438-4790) and request that a booklet be mailed to you.
